The American Council on Education (ACE) Women’s Network is a national system of networks within each state, Puerto Rico, and the District of Columbia with the goal of advancing and supporting women in higher education. Each state network is led by a state coordinator who works with institutional representatives and at least one presidential sponsor to develop programs that identify, develop, encourage, advance, link, and support (IDEALS) women in higher education careers within that state.

The state networks are linked to one another through their connection with the Inclusive Excellence Group and the ACE Women’s Network Executive Council, a group of senior women executives from across the country who serve as both mentors to the state coordinators and as advisers to ACE on the overall functioning of the ACE Women’s Network. State coordinators also benefit from the mentorship and advice from college and university presidents and chancellors who have agreed to serve as presidential sponsors.

Mission

The ACE Women’s Network facilitates the networking of women interested in pursuing leadership opportunities in higher education. A 4-part structure - Network Executive Council, independent, state-based networks with state coordinators, presidential sponsors, and institutional representatives – facilitates these connections, allows for sharing of best practices, particularly at the State Coordinators Annual Conference, and enables local leadership training by the state networks.

Connecting with Your State Network

ACE encourages faculty and women administrators from across the country to participate in their respective state network events.

ACE Women’s Network Executive Council

Members of the ACE Women’s Network Executive Council serve as advisers to ACE’s Inclusive Excellence Group, liaisons to the state networks, and mentors to state coordinators.

Our History

In 1977, with a grant from the Carnegie Corporation, ACE launched the ACE National Identification Program (NIP), which is now the ACE Women’s Network. Through the NIP, ACE sought to gain a better understanding of and address the needs of women in higher education careers in addition to supporting their professional development and advancement. This mission is still relevant today, and our networks across the country continue to support it.
Mission Statement

The ACE Women’s Network - Ohio is a network of women administrators, faculty, and staff from colleges and universities across the state that is dedicated to the professional advancement of women. Through representatives, conferences, workshops, and other resources, we are committed to improving the status of women on our campuses and throughout higher education. In doing so, we support the mission of the Inclusive Excellence Group (IEG) and the American Council on Education (ACE).

On behalf of the entire Ohio Dominican University community, it is my honor and pleasure to welcome the 18th Annual Statewide Conference of the ACE Women’s Network-Ohio (ACE WNO) to our campus. This annual event presents an ideal opportunity for networking, mentoring and exploration in our ongoing efforts to promote leadership opportunities for women in higher education.

The theme for this year’s conference is most compelling: “Stepping Up: Promoting and Supporting Women’s Leadership.” The list of speakers for the conference is made up of an impressive collection of accomplished women in leadership positions from colleges and universities across our state. Here at Ohio Dominican, we have a rich history of strong women in leadership roles, as our first 12 presidents were all members of the Congregation of Dominican Sisters who founded this university. Even today, three of our five vice presidents are outstanding women leaders, as is our Dean of Student Life. We are intentional in our commitment to seek out and hire qualified women for top leadership positions, lest we lose the momentum that so many have worked so hard to establish.

The ACE WNO annual conference offers women in higher education a forum for personal growth and professional development; an environment in which connections can be made that will remain strong long after you leave our campus. Together, we can work to ensure that leadership opportunities for women continue to expand at our respective organizations, while preparing the next generation of women to step into these challenging and rewarding roles.

This year’s conference features what promises to be an enlightening and empowering Presidential Panel discussion, as well as a variety of interesting breakout sessions. The final Plenary Session by Calli Mango of Cuyahoga Community College will provide valuable advice on how to manage up within your organization to position yourself for future leadership roles.

I am grateful to the ACE Executive Board for all of the work that went into planning this year’s conference, and for selecting Ohio Dominican to be the host site. I also want to express my sincere thanks to Karen Gray for her work as ODU’s institutional representative.

I hope you enjoy your time here on our campus, and that you are able to take away some key knowledge and advice to help advance your career in higher education.

Sincerely,

Peter Cimbolic, Ph.D.
President

ACE WNO 2016 Awards

The ACE Women’s Network-Ohio has created four state-wide professional awards. Designed to recognize the diverse groups who participate in the Network, the distinct eligibility and criteria for each award is listed below. All awards value individuals who have contributed to the advancement of women colleagues by effectively implementing one or more of the “IDEALS” described by the ACE Inclusive Excellence Group:

- Identifying women leaders;
- Developing their leadership abilities;
- Encouraging the use of those abilities;
- Advancing women’s careers;
- Linking women leaders to other women and to mentors; and
- Supporting women as they pursue their professional aspirations

Excellence in Higher Education Leadership Award

Dr. Janice Walker
Chief Diversity and Inclusion Officer, Xavier University

This award recognizes an outstanding woman leader who has made significant contributions to higher education in Ohio. This is the Network’s highest external honor. The award winner should have served as a role model and leader to other women in the field of higher education through her demonstrated commitment to the leadership development and advancement of women on her campus and in the community.

Outstanding Service by an Institutional Representative Award

Dr. Penny Poplin Gosetti
Professor, Department of Higher Education, University of Toledo

This award recognizes the work of an Outstanding Institutional Representative (IR) who has advocated effectively on behalf of the leadership development and professional advancement of women colleagues at her institution. This is the Network's highest internal honor. Institutional Representatives are nominated by the Executive Board’s four Regional Coordinators on the basis of information gathered throughout the course of the prior year about IRs’ activity on their campuses.

Professional Development Scholarships

Marissa Pauly
Program Manager, College of Arts & Sciences, University of Cincinnati

Dr. Xi Wang
Assistant Professor, Department of Mathematical Sciences, University of Cincinnati

In an effort to provide women from Ohio institutions of higher education with the opportunity to gain leadership expertise, the Network has established scholarships to support participation at conferences or workshops, membership in professional organizations, and other opportunities for professional development. The awards are to be used to reimburse registration and/or travel expenses.

ACE Sponsored Leadership Program Scholarship Awards

Dr. Stephanie Goodwin
Director of Faculty Development and Leadership, Wright State University

Dr. Robin Selzer
Assistant Professor, Pre-Health Internship Program, University of Cincinnati

The network has established this award to offer support for participation in the American Council on Education's Leadership programs including the National and Regional Leadership Forums and the Spectrum Aspiring and Executive Leadership Programs. These leadership programs are intended for women administrators who aspire to senior-level posts in higher education.
Registration and Continental Breakfast

Opening Remarks

Presidential Panel
Dr. Sharon Gaber, University of Toledo
Dr. Kathy Krendl, Otterbein University
Dr. Doreen Larson, Edison Community College
Dr. Mary Ellen Mazey, Bowling Green State University, Moderator
Dr. Monica Posey, Cincinnati State

This distinguished panel of college and university presidents will share their thoughts and insights on the advancement of women in higher education as well as their own career trajectories. In addition, conversation will focus around the changing landscape of higher education and college and university leaders’ expectations regarding those changes and the skills required to be successful. It is the hope of ACE WNO that the panel’s message will resonate with all attendees, be it graduate students aspiring to administrative or academic positions in higher education, emerging and mid-level administrators seeking to advance to the next level of administration, or senior leaders working their way toward presidencies.

  Managing Up: Strategies on How to Get Recognized for the Next Leadership Role
  Calli Mango
  Cuyahoga Community College
  "Managing up" has become a popular career development approach within the working world. Many individuals tend to confuse the theory with "brown nosing" in order to climb the corporate ladder. Others may view it as being assertive and presenting new ideas, without being mindful of leadership’s plans and goals that often align with the overall mission of the organization. In this session, we will learn that real managing up has more to do with being a stellar employee who’s quality of work is so remarkable, that administration has no choice but to consider her for the next leadership role! Managing up not only relies on a person’s skill level, but also requires that one operate with a high level of integrity, emotional intelligence, and keen observation to be able to successfully meet the needs of supervisors while helping her move to the next level.

GRIFF 274
Judy D’Andrea, Skylight Financial Group

A personal financial plan doesn’t have to be overwhelming, intimidating, or complicated. And it’s not just for the wealthy. It’s important for everyone so we can get where we want to be. In this hands-on workshop, we’ll approach personal financial planning as if you were planning a road trip. As with any journey, we’ll begin by locating your starting point and how you got here. Not sure where you are financially? That’s okay. We can help you identify how to find that information. Next, we’ll work on where you want to be and what “road hazards” might concern you. From there, we’ll identify possible routes to get you there. Of course, every road trip has its expected detour(s). So we’ll consider when and how to re-route. Every journey begins with a first step, so let’s get started!

Shaping Success as a Woman Leader
GRIFF 260
Raymonda Burgman, HERS

What is success? What does it mean to step into your leadership and bring others along with you? HERS promotes the most positive aspects of being women senior leaders-making an impact, using power and authority well, being a role model, broad scope of the job, having influence-these make up a broader definition of success. For women who want to succeed by making a difference, it is important to understand and seek the key supports for advancing their leadership-encouragement, formal development, role models, and early leadership opportunities. The workshop includes methods for boosting confidence and ways to use the HERS Community and the ACE Network as resources to find these supports. During the session, we will also highlight the leadership experiences of women in STEM and women of color.

Stepping Up to Talk About Race: Helping Women to Become Effective Leaders in Higher Education
GRIFF 259
Josie Evans-Phillips, Marcus Johnson, and Robin Selzer, University of Cincinnati

In the aftermath of the Samuel DuBose killing at the University of Cincinnati, the days of teaching tolerance, the melting pot, and colorblindness are behind us. Race-conscious institutional leadership is necessary for understanding how to achieve equity for all. In this session, racial consciousness will be explored as a vital quality for those in leadership roles at colleges and universities. Do you REALLY know about the realities of race on your campus? What actions can you take to boldly confront longstanding racial problems and work towards racial equity within your department/college? Two race-conscious leaders will share their strategies for how they have come to SEE race and develop anti-racist awareness. Participants will have an opportunity to reflect on their own ways they ignore or acknowledge racial visibilities and invisibilities. The next generation depends on us.

Assertive and Authentic: Overcoming Passive Aggressive Behavior in Organizations
GRIFF 258
Robin Lightner and Sue Sipple, University of Cincinnati Blue Ash College

The sarcastic comment that leaves you wondering, chronic low-level disobedience, procrastination, resentfulness, and sullenness. These workplace behaviors can make you feel like you’re going crazy. They often come with excuses that make them very challenging to address. Besides their unpleasantness, passive-aggressive behaviors in the workplace are destructive for morale, they limit a department’s productivity, and they derail people’s careers. In this workshop, we will go through a number of activities designed to identify common passive-aggressive workplace behaviors. Participants will take an inventory about their own passive-aggressive tendencies. We will present research on the causes and results of passive-aggressiveness. In the second half of the workshop, we’ll present strategies for dealing with common passive-aggressive behaviors, and in groups, participants will work through scenarios and rate each other’s suggestions for responses. Finally, participants will reflect on ways to use these strategies back in their workplaces.
Understanding the Intersecting Identities and Leadership of Women of Color: How Do You Survive and Exist as a Woman, Professional, and Caregiver?

GRIFF 274

Priscilla Ayala, Ciara Black, Thembi Carr, and Brandi Elliott, University of Cincinnati

As women leaders, we hold many roles, and have to juggle them constantly. For women of color there are added levels of responsibilities and stressors. In this presentation, personal testimonies of women of color will be shared in order to dialogue, better understand, and provide best practices for navigating these intersecting identities, while prompting self-care, self-empowerment, and self-worth. One title doesn’t define us! #IAmMoreThan__________

Realizing Your Aspirations: Moving Into Administrative or Senior Positions

GRIFF 260

Wafaa Hanna, Penny Poplin Gosetti, Azadeh Parvin, and Colleen Taylor, University Of Toledo

In a world of personal and professional challenges, limited advancement opportunities, and an academy whose leadership is generally dominated by white males, how can you advance your career, identify your passions, determine your career goals, and achieve them? This session will address in an interactive manner, the knowledge, skills, and tools necessary to navigate your work environments for the attainment of administrative positions and/or advancement. While focusing on the movement of faculty into academic administrative positions, content will also be applicable to staff members who desire to advance themselves into senior positions.

A Mission-Conscious Women’s Leadership Salon

GRIFF 259

Debra Mooney, Xavier University

This workshop outlines a unique leadership development program which strengthens women’s leadership capacities and confidence through a socio-emotional dialogical approach. The European ‘salon’- style colloquium, which facilitates personal reflection, small group conversation and peer support, has been adapted to seasoned leaders as well as new professionals. The Women’s Leadership Salon is designed around the strategies to overcome barriers to women’s advancement. They are: networking, role models, confidence, understanding of own strengths, family and career balance, corporate (or organizational) culture, systematic investment in career and development, and career planning. This workshop will appeal to conference attendees interested in understanding this unique approach via description and an experiential component (addressing leadership strengths and impression management).

Attention to Detail: Financial Finishing Touches for Women

GRIFF 258

Brandi Critchett and Alicia Waltenberger, TIAA

What does your financial future hold? Financial success can often complicate your life and we’d like to help. In this interactive workshop, you will learn how to evaluate your retirement readiness, identify and work with a financial advisor, and understand the benefits of an estate plan.
President Panel

Sharon L. Gaber, Ph.D.
University of Toledo

Dr. Sharon L. Gaber began her tenure as the 17th president of The University of Toledo (UT) in Summer 2015. Throughout the past year, she has worked to build upon the many strengths of the University, while also identifying key areas for growth. Collaborating with faculty, physicians, staff and students, Dr. Gaber has established five strategic goals for the University: raise its national status; increase student enrollment; increase externally funded research; grow philanthropic support; and reduce administrative expenses. Additionally, Dr. Gaber is moving the University forward through several major plans, including: a strategic plan; a diversity plan; a master facilities plan; and an enrollment plan. By realigning the administrative team, she also has streamlined executive positions and, with approval from the Board of Trustees, has merged UT Colleges to reduce the number from 16 to 13.

A city and regional planning expert, she came to UT following six years as provost and vice chancellor for academic affairs at the University of Arkansas. Prior to that, Dr. Gaber served in multiple roles in the provost’s office at Auburn University in Alabama, and also worked at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

She earned her bachelor’s degree from Occidental College in Los Angeles, a master’s degree from the University of Southern California, and her doctoral degree in city and regional planning from Cornell University.

Kathy A. Kreidel, Ph.D.
Otterbein University

Dr. Kathy A. Kreidel is the 20th president and the first woman to lead Otterbein University, a comprehensive master’s institution of 3,000 students founded in 1847 as the first coeducational institution in the country. During her tenure at Otterbein, the institution has won national recognition for its distinctive undergraduate curriculum and its focus on experiential learning. Otterbein is consistently recognized on the President’s Honor Roll of community-engaged institutions. It also consistently ranks in the top tier of institutions for its commitment to a student-centered learning environment.

Prior to joining Otterbein, Dr. Kreidel served in key leadership positions at Ohio University including Executive Vice President and Provost as well as Dean of the Scripps College of Communication. At Indiana University, Dr. Kreidel served as a faculty member, administrator, and Dean of IU’s state-wide School of Continuing Studies.

Dr. Kreidel serves on a number of boards including the Osteopathic Heritage Foundation, the YWCA Columbus, I Know I Can, and Ohio Campus Compact. In addition, she chairs the Executive Committee of the Association for Independent Colleges and Universities of Ohio (AICUO). She has been awarded the Global Women’s Summit Leadership Award, the Living Faith Award, and Ohio’s Most Powerful and Influential Women Award. In 2015, she was honored by WELD (Women for Economic and Leadership Development) as the first recipient of the Riveter Award. She currently teaches in the area of Women and Leadership and has established the Otterbein Women’s Leadership Network to develop regional partnerships promoting opportunities for women.

Doreen Larson, Ph.D.
Edison State Community College

Dr. Doreen Larson is the fifth President of Edison State Community College, located in Piqua, Ohio. She began her position on July 1, 2015 and is the first female president of the college.

Dr. Larson’s experience in community college education began at Lakeland Community College as a tenure-track faculty member, Dean of Counseling and Assistant Vice President for Student Access and Services. She established the first office of services for students with disabilities at Lakeland. Dr. Larson then served as the Vice President of Student Affairs at Holyoke Community College in Massachusetts where she increased the diversity of the students and staff by developing college teams and partnering with local K-12 school systems. She was awarded the Massachusetts State Women’s Leadership Award and was selected as a member of the American Association of Community Colleges (AACC) Commission on Equity, Diversity, and Inclusion. In 2010, Dr. Larson was selected as the President of Pierpont Community and Technical College where she focused on regional partnerships, outreach to veterans, increased graduation rates, and workforce training.
As president of Edison State, Dr. Larson has expanded workforce partnerships with regional manufacturers in the Upper Miami Valley. Under her leadership, Edison State has implemented exemplary career services and career pathways, earning the college the Ohio ACT Career-Readiness 2016 Award. Dr. Larson has also supported development of an Agribusiness degree program anchored at the Edison State Greenville campus in Darke County.

In 2011, she was inducted into the Mayfield High School Hall of Fame in recognition of her lifelong commitment to increasing access to education for minorities and people with disabilities. Dr. Larson was elected to the AACC Board of Directors in 2015. In Fall 2015, the Dayton Business Journal named Dr. Larson one of the region’s “50 Most Powerful Women”. Dr. Larson holds a Ph.D. in Special Education from Kent State University, M.A. in Education from John Carroll University, and graduated Summa Cum Laude from Cleveland State University with a Bachelor’s in Special Education.

Mary Ellen Mazey, Ph.D.
Bowling Green State University

Dr. Mary Ellen Mazey became the 11th president of Bowling Green State University (BGSU) on July 1, 2011. She previously served as Provost and Vice-President of Academic Affairs at Auburn University, as Dean of the Eberly College of Arts and Sciences at West Virginia University, and as Dean of the College of Liberal Arts at Wright State University. In 1996-97 she had an Intergovernmental Personnel Assignment and served as Director of the Office of University Partnerships at the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. A first-generation college graduate, Dr. Mazey earned bachelor’s and master’s degrees from West Virginia University and a Ph.D. from the University of Cincinnati.

Dr. Mazey is deeply committed to student success and to providing a high quality education that leads to long-term career value for students. Her vision for BGSU is focused on building regional, state, national and global partnerships that enhance the student experience, facilities, revenues and ensure that BGSU is positioned in the global marketplace. She is committed to a diverse campus environment that serves all students.

Dr. Mazey has served as a consultant on strategic planning and as an evaluator for the Higher Learning Commission. She currently serves on the Association of Public and Land-Grant Universities (APLU) Voluntary System of Accountability (VSA) Board and as Chair of the board for the Western Collegiate Hockey Association (WCHA). In addition, she serves on the board of directors of the Toledo Chamber of Commerce and the northwest Ohio Regional Growth Partnership.

Monica J. Posey, Ed.D.
